Enjoy Free Performances and a Sweet Treat Among the Trees on August 13 and 20

Seattle, WA—Music in the Arboretum returns next month with two FREE, outdoor performances at Washington Park Arboretum. Experience music from beloved local musicians, enjoy a complimentary popsicle (while supplies last), and relax among the trees. All ages welcome!

First up, on Wednesday, August 13 from 6 to 8 p.m., Ben Hunter & The Intraterrestrials will share folk music from the Black diaspora. Melding sounds, rhythms, and instruments from a global perspective, the Intraterrestrials bring groove, storytelling, and fusion into one sound!

Then, on Wednesday, August 20, from 6 to 8 p.m., Jose Gonzales Trio will perform creative, bluesy variations on jazz favorites. The trio features the talented jazz pianist and Seattle Japanese Garden horticulturist Jose Gonzales.

Both performances will take place at the Graham Visitors Center in the Arboretum (2300 Arboretum Drive East, Seattle, WA 98112). Only a limited number of seats will be provided, so attendees are encouraged to bring their own folding chair, cushion, or blanket. Event parking is free, but spaces are also limited; attendees are encouraged to carpool or come by foot, bicycle, or public transportation.

If you have questions, please contact the Arboretum Foundation at info@arboretumfoundation.org or 206-325-4510. Full details and RSVP: arboretumfoundation.org/events/music-in-the-arboretum
